HOTELS:

The Lochgreen House Hotel, Troon: Voted by AA as Scotland's Hotel of the Year in 2004 the hotel is situated on the outskirts of Troon, Ayrshire. It nestles amidst 30 acres of woodland and most visitors are surprised and delighted when they drive towards Lochgreen House by the absolute precision of the manicured lawns and borders – a testament to the hard work of the maintenance team. The house has been completely restored and renovated and offers a touch of luxury whilst retaining the 'homely' feel.

The Bonham Hotel, Edinburgh: Located close to the West End and Princes Street and a previous winner of Scotland's Hotel of the Year Award, this imaginative conversion of a former university residence combines many of the original Victorian features with a more contemporary style. Comfortable and practical bedrooms offer up-to-theminute technology and splendid bathrooms. A striking modern restaurant, in the brasserie style, features interesting light cuisine. Service is professional and friendly.

GOLF COURSES:

Western Gailes: Western Gailes, founded in 1897, is unquestionably one of the finest courses in Scotland. The course has played host to the Curtis Cup, PGA Championship, Seniors and prestigious Scottish Amateur Championship. It is also one of the final qualifying courses when The Open is played at Turnberry or Royal Troon.

Prestwick: The course serves as an interesting historical example of the type of golfing terrain on which the first Open champions had to play. The challenging, long 3rd hole, known as The Cardinal, may be the most famous part of Prestwick.

North Berwick-West Links: One of the finest true links courses in Scotland, North Berwick West sits along the shore of the Firth of Forth with fine views of the Bass Rock and the distant green hills of Fife. The course is most famous for the 15th hole, as well as the bunkers, beach and rough. Sea winds constantly play a factor.
